To help the little bables,
Dear friends, we meet to-night,
And every cent you give us
Will send a ray of light
To some dark, dismal chamber,
Where a weary mother bends
Above her suffering infant,
Without money, without friends.

Despair her heart is filling.

And sad her mournful cry:

O. Father! poor and heipless,
Must. I watch my baby die?

Learn to Swim.

The best way for the neophyte to acquire confidence is to wade slowly out until the water is up to the armpits, then to bend the knees until the water reaches the chin. During this motion you may have the conscintory assurance that at any moment you can straighten yourself up and walk back to the shore. Then gradually throw your bead back as far as it will go until the water covers your ears-and now is the time to give whom you have reliance to stand beside you and to give you confidence, but do not rely on his assistance. But if you wish to learn to swim rapidly, you must do everything yourseif. How to Peel Tomataes.

Nearly all cook books say: "Pour billing water over ripe tomatoes, then skin them." and at least ninety in every 100 persons attempt to peel them in this manner, and consequently do it with much difficulty and very imperfectly.

This is the proper way to peel tomatoes: then lay them in cold water till they are perfectly cold, when the skin can be slipped off petticont besides. A Dining-Room Motto. In the dining-room of a quaint old house place is flowing Hiuminated text,
